In regard to the several previous articles on pollution, it seems that all we have done is to waste energy talking that could be used more constructively in doing something. I'm sure everyone is concerned about their investment and the future of Birch Lake. Why don't we try to work together instead of against each other. If we know or even suspect that someone is polluting the lake, why don't we turn their names over to the Health and Safety Committee and let them talk to the person under suspicion. Perhaps we should all run dye through our own systems to make sure that we are not (unknowingly) polluting the lake.
